Q. So what other things? Tell me that his legacy-tell me how his legacy could be shown. A. Education as we said was very important to him. Some interactive education facility there where children could come and maybe record a song or something or a little James Brown studio. I mean there's so many--I don't want to give everybody my ideas but there's so many things that we've talked about. A school, you know, that could be constructed here and, you know, when you say things in there, those are material things. But, you know, there are audiotape/videotape of him talking about black power and--and black people owning businesses and land and, you know, those things. Those are historical moments in time and they teach futures to come. They teach them about where he come from and what he believed in and what black people were about. He--those things can be displayed in a way--

Q. That they're--

A. Exhibited in a way--

Q. As an inspiration?

A. --as an inspiration, as an educational piece--

O. Where are--

A. -- to show how his arms reached across borders and touched people of other cultures. How he was world they had over the years, pictures or whatever. Those were his things and they should be in a way where the world could see them, maybe not just in Augusta but the world at large could see pieces of James Brown.

Q. What do you want to see the trust doing right now?

A. Without the personal representatives there?

Q. Let's just say what do you want to see the trust to be doing right now?

A. Providing the educational money for his grandchildren and a criteria put in place for needy children because there was no criteria put in place on this trust. A criteria to find out who would be eligible for money.

Q. And then what do you envision the income would be available to--let's say to do it now? Is there income available? Do you know?

A. There's income available.

O. And where is it?

A. I don't know where it's going.

Q. Where does the income come from that would--

A. So many different sources I can't say one thing. There are so many different sources.

Q. Just kind of give me some of them.

A. There's royalties. There's--where he did movies. He did movies, television shows; there's just so much. A James Brown doll. There's just so many different things.

PAGE 154 ambassador for children's charities and all of these things 2 that he was.

> Q. And where are those things? Where are the videotapes? Where are they located?

A. I honestly don't know where everything is. I honestly don't know where everything is 'cause there's so many things. There's so many things.

Q. And in that house you would want the Grammy awards; right?

A. Yes. His awards,

Q. You'd want the awards hanging on the wall. You want the pictures of your father with every president in his 12 lifetime; is that right?

A. Yes.

Q. What are the things that the family would like to take out of the house as personal effects?

A. I don't know. We haven't sat down and discussed that. We haven't locked at that in terms of dividing up or anything. We haven't discussed that.

Q. Well, let's just say from your point of view. What would you like to take away in the way of personal effects?

A. It's hard. I can't answer that, really. I can't do that. I have things that my dad gave me that are personal to me. I have gifts that people have given me that 25

Q. All of which should be flowing into the trust?

A. Maybe not all. I don't know exactly what should go into the trust.

MR. LEVENSON: Excuse me. Hold on a second.

That's a legal question. If you know--

MS. LEWIS: No. I'm not asking a legal question. I'm just asking--

MR. LEVENSON: Well, yes, you are. You're asking her if assets that don't belong legally to the trust should go to the trust. That's a legal question.

MS. LEWIS: Let me just rephrase it. I'm asking--

MR. LEVENSON: So if you know--

MS. LEWIS: I've asked--

MR. LEVENSON: If you know, you can answer it.

Q. [Ms. Lewis] Here's what I'm asking. I've asked what you would like to see done with the trust money and you've talked about it. And I'm asking what income you would like to see--what income you would like to see flowing into that trust to carry out his passion.

A. I don't know. I can't give you a figure 'cause I don't know what the appropriate figure would be.

Q. But do you see--would you want to see the royalties flowing into the trust?

A. I would like to see monies flowing into the trust. I don't know if it should be royalties; I don't know what it

18	MR. LEVENSON: We'll break.	17	Q. Told to you. What did they tell you?
19	MR. BELL: Yeah.	18	A. That that's how it was set up. They would receiv
